

Dear Juanita,

If you've spent the last two days attempting to remove glitter from your carpet, when you know for a fact you never put on glitter to begin with – you're probably recovering from an eventful New Year's Eve fête.

The glass clinking, the dancing, the reminiscing, and more importantly, the waxing optimistically about your plans for 2018.

So if we may, let us be your piping hot (and steady) cup of digital coffee and make one suggestion: Instead of letting this month be a fresh start to sameness, how about a transformation? A declaration to yourself that -- though you know change requires taking action, whether it's to finish your degree or launch into grad school – you're ready. At Regis University, our passion is to educate people to make a positive impact as they live purposefully. And there's no time like the present to get started.

Especially after last weekend.
